A Thousand Miles Up the Nile

World War Z : United Nations employee Gerry Lane traverses the world in a race against time to stop the Zombie pandemic that is toppling armies and governments, and threatening to destroy humanity. Just as capitalism erases difference to make way for a homogenous global anti-culture, artistic traditions are swept aside, denounced as irrelevant almost as soon as they have established themselves.

According to Dag Heward-Mills one of the most effective tricks of the enemy is to make people believe that the devil does not exist. This is, in part, enabled by the long format of the series, where stories no longer need to be told within the screen time of two hours or so. Note the similarity in the writings of a twentieth century Christian educator: ". Live thou a hundred full and plenteous autumns, and wrap thee in prosperity of riches.
